SHREVEPORT, La - A group working to put an end to infant circumcision stopped in Shreveport.

An organization called "Bloodstained Men" was protesting Sunday afternoon at the corner of Youree Drive and East 70th street.

Demonstrators held signs some even wore bloodstained suits for a dramatic effect.

The group's Facebook page notes their goal is to raise awareness about what they describe as "the horrors of infant circumcision."

The non-profit organization says it is dedicated to educating Americans about the importance of the foreskin.

Sunday marked day two of the protest. The organization's social media page lists Jackson, Mississippi as its next stop.
