

Circumcision protesters hit Bozeman, Missoula

Jul 18, 2016

In Bozeman on the corner of 19th and Main--one of the busiest intersections in town--there were roughly five men dressed in white protesting the practice of circumcision. It is part of a 15 town tour that will end in Washington. According to the groups website, circumcision at birth is a violation of human rights and men should have the choice whether they want to partake in the practice.

Brother K, the groups founder, says people from all over the country are joining in the movement. The group was in Missoula yesterday and will be in Idaho tomorrow.
