Anti-Circumcision Demonstrators Bring Message to Duluth

August 09, 2017 10:21 PM

Protesters who are against circumcision brought their message to Duluth Wednesday.

A traveling group marched with signs in hand on Central Entrance. They say there are health risks to circumcision. Demonstrators do not believe it is a medical operation, and they call it an ancient superstition.

"We are here to warn the American people that circumcision is harmful, dangerous and destructive. It has no health benefits whatsoever," said protester "Brother K."
